HAVING refitted and enlarged my stock of machinery and tools, and having secured the services of the best of mechanics, I am prepared to warrant all work done to give entire satisfaction. I have on hand different patterns and styles of Engines, Fire Clay Rolls, and am prepared to make or repair all descriptions of machinery, on reasonable terms.

Plows and Plow Castings.

I have all the best plow patterns that suit this market, among which is the "Great Western," which has been THE plow of our county for the last fifteen years. There are five sizes of this plow, all of which I manufacture and keep for sale: also "Patent Lever"—right and left—"Mountain King"—right and left—"Side Hill," and nearly all the different kinds in use.

Cooking, Franklin and Heating Stoves.

Having made several important improvements on the "Climax," by which coal or wood can supplied without lifting lids, and having two places for pipe, either or both of which can be used at the same time, with a ventilation to the oven, thus having the advantages of a Cooking Stove, Bake Oven and Franklin Stove combined. This stove has been in constant use for twenty years, and many of them after being used for this period of time, are now in good order. There is but a small portion of this stove that ever burns out, and this is easily and cheaply replaced. To make them still more lasting, we are now putting in tile or fire brick lining. Our other patterns are the Enterprise, Keystone and Premium. Parlor stoves, large and small heating stoves, Franklin stoves, Jenny Lind's, &c. Grates and Grate Fronts, Fenders, Iron Railing of various styles, Wagon Boxes, two Irons, Tire Benders, Corn Shellers, Force and Cistern Pumps, Sad Irons, Metal Sinks for kitchen, Sheet Iron and Tin ware, always on hand and made to order. In fact, I manufacture and keep for sale, almost everything wanted in the machinery or hardware line.

Second hand stoves always for sale cheap. Two good new engines, suitable for saw-mill or shop purposes now on hand, and will be sold reasonable.

For the Argus.

An Adventure at Sea.

WRITTEN BY THE PERSON WHO EXPERIENCED IT, TO FOUR OF HIS YOUNG FRIENDS, FOR THEIR AMUSEMENT.

Under such nursing I was soon able to be on deck, and many and many a [illegible] walk we took, when the sky was [illegible], often did we converse on our past adventures and our future prospects.

The captured vessel sank in twenty minutes after the sick and wounded were taken from her. I regret to say that two of our ship's company went down with her; and next morning we learned that one of Don Antonia's men too had sank beneath the waves.

This statement was received from Lieut. Cunningham.

Thus forever those seas were rid of a robber chief and his cut-throat band. The first shot fired by me from starboard battery sent the chief and half a score of his men into eternity. A short week rolled away into the sands of time. I and my men were all quite well.

The painful idea of soon parting with my enamorat, was constantly before me for a few days past. The hour at length came, and my feelings were awfully wrought upon.

'Twas evening hour, four o'clock when we reached an anchorage, within hailing distance of Haidies House. Adieus were given, promises exchanged, when at a given signal the Capt.'s gig pushed off from the ship's side.

I watched the party until they landed and were lost to sight amidst orange groves.

I sighed, and went to my cabin (during my illness a state room was given [illegible] love-sick man or boy you ever saw.

We had no particular cruising ground, and all that was required of us was to report to home squadron when passing and await further orders.

Next day came and went, and no word from our Spanish friends. I was about exclaiming against them, when from a stray nook far up the beach, shot out one of those fast and beautiful gondolas propelled by ten stout rowers. All were dressed gorgeously, and they headed for our ship. My heart beat quicker and I could hardly contain myself. Soon though they were along side, and immediately after a young grandee of Spain presented himself to our captain, who was on deck at the time.—After presenting his guardian's compliments, he handed him a sealed note bearing the stamp of royalty upon its surface.

His next act was to call the officer of the watch and request him to point out "C."—'Twas done, and he handed me a dainty package. After bowing, he returned to the [illegible] boat and then back to the landing.

I was the observed of all observers. I retired to my room to examine the contents of my letter.

It was written in a beautiful and plain style, interspersed here and there with Spanish exclamations! I was to be present on the morrow, as a banquet was to be given to our ship's company. This was an honor which could not be too fully appreciated, and with feverish anxiety I looked for the coming morrow.

At day break all were up aboard, and such cleansing and brushing would hardly be seen if we were going to entertain our commodore. The hour for starting at length came

Our gallant captain, just before embarking, presented me with another epaulet, and now I held the rank of chief gunner.

We landed, and in an instant, or at least as soon as our commander sprang ashore, a concealed band began playing one of our favorite national airs.

As soon as it was finished we were marched or escorted to the Don's house, where a feast awaited us.

I met the Seniorretta soon after, and such a meeting! Language has not yet been found to express our delight, or at least mine. Hour after hour rolled bye. Still we were together, and forever I could stay thus; but gray morning began to tint the horizon. We parted and I returned to the banquet room.

All now seemed quiet, all buried in sleep, just in the position we sat or lay.

I soon found an ottoman in a little recess, and after removing some of my clothing, I too was soon in the arms of Morpheus.

A sleep of four hours quite refreshed me, and a stroll in the garden was next thought of. While moving alone over a beautiful gravelled walk, a sudden and shrill scream broke upon the air. I listened for a repetition, but none came. I at risk dashed on. I was just in time; for not more than three hundred yards inland I saw a large and powerful gray horse running at the top of his speed, and heading for a range of perpendicular rocks, that stood from one to four hundred feet above the water, whose base was one mass of foaming breakers.

A female form was firmly seated in the saddle, her countenance showing blank despair, her eyes were fixed, her left arm, outstreched, her shining black hair streaming to the wind, all too plainly told of the expected fate.

I was in range in a moment, my determination taken. I drew a long-barrelled Derringer from my belt, and with cool deliberation, I sighted my weapon.

Just as soon as the animal ran into the sights, I fired, and with a head-long plunge, the mad animal came to the earth. Only for my timely interference, he would have thrown his beautiful burthen far down into the seathing, foaming waves beneath.

Knowing the consequence if my shot was sure, just as I pressed the trigger I sprang into the path ahead of the horse, and caught the flying form.

After laying her gently in the shade of a beautiful magnolia, I saw for the first time that it was Seniorett Maria.

My brain swam when I thought of her narrow escape.

I was kneeling on the grass beside her when the old Don, her father, came galloping up. He was in a high state of excitement.—Springing from his little cob, he showered kisses upon the sweet lips, cheeks and forehead of his child.

I came in for a large share of his caresses when he knew how important a service I had rendered him.

A litter was sent for, the beautiful form of the young lady was placed thereon and borne to the house.

Her father stated they had been out for a morning ride, when returning, passing the lodge, her horse became restless and soon after unmanageable. He plunged from right to left, then with lightning like speed, he dashed madly towards the cliff.

All was commotion at the house when we arrived. It was reported that Seniorett and somebody was about to elope; that the old Don surprised them and because the lady could not love a certain party was shot, for they were sure they heard the report of a pistol.

Our appearance soon righted matters.—Soon again I had the pleasure of seeing her quite restored.

She came to where I was seated, in a little recess, with hands outstretched, her eyes fairly dancing—but this was all, she could not utter a single sentence, her heart was too full.

Now I became doubly fond of her. Without the least fear, she allowed her fine womanly feelings to run out to me unchecked. From morn till eve we were companions, and I fairly idolized her.

While living in such perfect bliss on this beautiful isle, I partly forgot my duties on shipboard. But all went well. A young man of good business qualities was appointed until my return. Sooner than I expected, a separation came. Just Heaven! but I felt it terribly.

About the fifth of October an order came by special envoy to Don Antonia to report at Castilicas, Spain, where he would find an escort to Madrid.

With a heavy heart I saw the preparations made for the departure. I was not the only one whose spirits were low in consequence.

Seniorretta of course acquiesed in her parents' wishes, but her heart was with him she was leaving behind.

A week quite sufficed to make the required arrangements. The day came at last. All the members of the old Don's family were aboard the homeward-bound vessel but father and daughter.

Our boys were on the beach to receive them, and as they passed along to the boat landing, a kind word and a tender good bye was bade to all of them [illegible] crew to accompany the Don's boat to the ship. We assisted them to reach the vessel's deck. While the sailors of (his) her majesty's barque were sheeting anchor, we too reached the deck and were saying our adieus.

The Seniorotta's beautiful eyes were full of tears as she paced from man to man, giving to each a memento with a parting kiss. When coming to old Manly (for he was always with us) she completely broke down. The noble fellow who could march to the cannons mouth without flinching, who had braved the storms and waves for nearly forty years could not stand the tears of lovely woman. He was deeply affected. I alone of all our party was cool, but my nature had changed. The heart springs had dried up, the calmness of despair had settled upon me. She rallied and moved toward me. In a voice broken by sighs, she remarked "To the others I gave presents and mementoes but to you I give my heart. Yours forever." After which she sank exhausted and I bore her gently to her state room. I could not long remain in her presence, for the loud shrill notes of the boat-swain's whistle roused me. I pressed a kiss upon her brow, a parting look and I was away.

A few hurried adieus with officers and men and I left the ships side. A parting salute of two guns was given us. Then with full and firm strokes we pulled for our own ship. After reaching my room I gave myself up to painful forebodings and for two days those harrassing feelings clung to me.

We soon were ordered to join the South Pacific Squadron. Active service soon again revived my spirits. But I never quite forgot my young friend, whose heart was in my keeping. I could not stand it much longer, so the first opportunity I had, I left the ship with her brave crew, and started for Cadiz, intending to commence my search for the Don and family from this point.

I could find no trace of them here and I hurried on to Madrid. Here to my sorrow I learned that the beautiful Senoretta and her father visited Paris, France, and while there the father was stricken down with a foul disease which soon carried him off. The daughter soon after followed, and thus one of the noblest and best of women was consigned to an early grave.

I visited her rooms (for I loved to look upon her handi-work,) and there I found many things which reminded me of the lovely Seniorotta. In her studio was a full length painting of C——, and all taken from impression made upon the mind. It was life like I assure you.

She was lost to me forever, her words of long ago, again rang in my ears. All will be lost in oceans gloom to-night. How fully they were realized.

After making a brief stay in old Spain, I again returned to the States to commence life anew. All was gone, my ship had returned some time before, and her crew was paid off, my name was quite stricken off the papers and books. My share of the prize money was taken for some other use, in consequence of my leaving the service. But a pardon was gotten for me by Lieut's. A. M. Young and Cunningham. This is yet in my possession and is all I have to show of the first adventuresome cruise I was on.

And now kind friends I will soon close, I have only to add that this is the cause of my journeying on alone through this life of trials and vicissitudes. This is why my flinty heart can not be softened; but remember the kind smile of lovely woman has a softening influence and words in kindness spoken are not soon forgotten by me.

They have their effect, and now let me again ask your pardon for trespassing so much upon your precious time. I hope you will pardon style and errors. When you can in any way procure for me a kind word or sympathetic smile you will; as these from the fair, have a wonderful effect. I am kind friends very respectfully and obediently Yours,

J. D. C.

Land Titles in Pennsylvania

There is scarcely one person out of five hundred, owners of land in Pennsylvania, whose broad acres are the envy of their poorer neighbors, and whose productive farms are the sure foundations of national wealth—there is scarcely one out of every five hundred who has ever taken the trouble to ascertain whether his title to his estates is valid. The prevailing idea that peaceable possession for twenty years renders every title to real estate valid and good, is, of course sound, so far as individual claims against such property are concerned. But it must be borne in mind that the original ownership of the lands in Pennsylvania dated from the creation of the colony, and was transmitted to the Commonwealth whose claims are not controled by limitation, and debts owing to which can never die out. The Surveyor General of Pennsylvania is now engaged in the performance of a curious duty, the result of which will be to startle many an owner of a farm, who has been dreaming that his title to his real estate is without a flaw. The records show, moreover, that there are thousands and tens of thousands of acres of land in Pennsylvania, upon which the State has a claim back-standing as far as 1780, and upwards, which claim has been enlarging in amount from year to year, by the interest accuring thereon. In 1864, an act was passed authorizing the Surveyor General to make out lists of all lands held by locations, or any other office right issued from the Land Department of every description, the holders of which possess no patents. It is in obedience to this act that the Surveyor General is now pushing forward with great vigor the work of making out the lists of all such lands. It therefore, becomes very important for every owner of real estate in Pennsylvania at once to ascertain whether his land has been patented, and whether there are any backstanding dues against such land in the land office. The law of 1861 requires the amount due on unpatented lands only to [illegible] It is now proposed to pass another law, covering cases where money is due on patented lands, where a patent has been issued and a mortgage or lien been executed to the Governor for the use of the Commonwealth. Many acres have been taken possession of, improved, and held without even the formality of an application, warrant, or survey. It is the purpose of the Legislature at once to provide the legal means for enforcing the claims of the State against such territory.

Altogether—and we have barely hinted at this subject—the work on which the Surveyor General is engaged is of the greatest importance. Those who know Surveyor General Campbell are fully aware of his strict and stern business habits. He is resolved, without creating undue alarm or imposing unjust hardships on any class of our fellow-citizens, to push all these claims of the Commonwealth to prompt collection. In this the Surveyor General will be sustained by Attorney General Brewster. It is time the State receives the benefit of what is due the Treasury. Our expenses of late years have been enormous.—Taxations has borne heavily upon the productive labor of the Commonwealth, and to create revenue for the State it has been deemed necessary to demand even a portion of the earnings of those who must toil and sweat for bread. When it is remembered there are millions of dollars due the State, as honest debts, from parties able to pay, it seems like unjustifiable harshness to levy heavy taxation until at least a fair effort is made to collect this indebtedness.

We repeat our admonition to the land-holders of Pennsylvania, whose duty it is at once to trace back the titles to their estates and see that all is right from the original warrants therefor. We hope, too, that our cotemporaries through the Commonwealth will give this subject some attention by at once urging those interested to make the necessary research into the validity of their deeds. Prompt action may stave off litigation, and save the additional expenses of office fees, or notifications. &c—Harrisburg Telegraph.

EX-REBEL Gen. James Longstreet has written a letter to The New Orleans Times, in which he says:

"There can be no discredit to a conquered people for accepting the conditions offered by their conquerors, nor is there any occasion for a feeling of humiliation. We made an honest, and I hope I may say a creditable fight, but we have lost. Let us come forward, then, and accept the ends involved in the struggle. Our people earnestly desire that the constitutional government shall be re-established, and the only means to accomplish this is to comply with the requirements of the recent Congressional legislation. It is said by some that Congress will not receive us even after we have complied with their conditions, but I can find no sufficient reason for entertaining this proposition for a moment. I can not admit that the representative men of a great nation could make such a pledge in bad faith. Admitting, however, that there is such mental reservation, can that be any excuse for us in failing to discharge our duty? Let us accept the terms, as we are in duty bound to do, and if there is a lack of good faith let it be upon others."

Horrible Indian Massacre.

The Philadelphia Inquirer gives the following extract from a letter dated Fort Sully, D. T., February 25 1867.

"There has been quite a stirring excitement in this part of the country with the red-skins, I suppose you know of the Fort Kearney affair. You ask me how far it is from us? It is about fifteen hundred miles northwest from here. By the upper mail which arrived here to-day, we heard some very bad news from Fort Buford. There was one company of our regiment stationed there, under the command of Colonel Rankins. The Indians made an attack on that little band, and it appears from all accounts that they fought bravely until out numbered by the red-skins, who killed them all but the Colonel and wife. They then took them a few yards from the post, and having built a fire, tied the Colonel's hands and feet and put him in the fire, while his wife was compelled to see him burning. After that was done they maltreated her in a shameful manner, and having rolled her up in a buffalo robe, they fastened her on a wild horse and turned him loose. God only knows how long she was on the prairie, but it happened, very fortunately, that the mail carriers for that fort encountered her in that condition and after they had heard who she was they took her in their charge and returned with her and the mails to Fort Rice.

The Indians were 1800 strong—our men only 96. They fought them three days; but on the third day the Indians took the place, scalped all the dead, and those who were officers they cut up into small pieces and ate them. That is considered bravery! It will not be good for them if they make their appearance around this fort. We are very well guarded. There are six companies here—four of infantry, one of cavalry and one of artillery. The weather here has been very cold. We have lost nearly all of our stock—frozen to death."

Young Man You Are Wanted.

A lady writer under this heading hits off the young men as follows: A woman wants you. Don't forget her. No matter if you are poor. Don't wait to be rich if you do, ten to one if you are fit to be married. Marry while you are young, and struggle up together. But mark young man the woman don't want you if she is to divide her affections with a cigar spittoon or whiskey jug. Neither does she want you if you don't take care of her, and the "little afterthoughts" which are pretty sure to follow. Neither does she want you because you are a man, the definition of which is too apt to be—an animal that wears bifurcated garments on his lower limbs, a quarter section of stove pipe on his head, swears like a pirate, and is given to slimy practices generally. She wants you for her companion, a helpmate—she wants you to have learned to regulate your appetite and passions: In short, the image of God, not in the likeness of a beast. If you are strong in a good purpose, firm in resistance to evil, pure in thought and action, as you require her to be, and without which inward purity neither of you are fit for husband and wife; if you love virtue and abhor vice, if you are gentlemanly, forbearing and kind; and not loud talking, exciting and brutal yound man, that woman wants you, that modest, fair, cheerful, rightlooking, frank-spoken woman we mean, who fills your ideas of mriden and wife. It is she that wants you—marry her when you like, whether she is rich or poor; we'll trust you both on the above conditions without any further security.

A SEVERE HIT.—Wade Hampton, ex-Rebel General, in an address recently delivered by him to the blacks of Columbia, S. C., gave the copper heads of Pennsylvania a stunning blow right between the eyes. Speaking of the prejudice of Northerners against the colored people, he said:

"A stronger prejudice has always existed at the North against your people than here, and it exists still. A curious instance of this prejudice came under my own observation some years ago in Philadelphia. Passing through that city I had with me two servants, for whom full fare was charged on the railroad but the ticket agent told me that they would not be allowed to ride in the same car with myself, as the people there 'did not like to ride with negroes.' 'But,' said I, 'you make me pay full price for them, and one of them is the nurse of my children.' 'That makes no difference,' he replied; 'you can't take them into the car.' I told him that I had paid their fare; that I thought them good enough to ride with me, and therefore quite good enough to ride with his fellow-citizens, and that they should get into my car. So I brought them in and kept them there."

THE United States presents to the world a noble example in having reduced their National Debt no less than Two Hundred and Nine Millions of Dollars during the year ending on the 21st inst. The balance in the Treasury was increased during that year by no less than Eighteen Millions of Dollars. We had only to keep on our taxes so as to maintain the revenue of 1866, and we should have paid the last fraction of our debt by the 4th day of July, 1887; and might then have celebrated our nation's One hundredth birthday with just and honest pride as well as with religious gratitude. We deeply regret that Congress saw fit to cut down the taxes so sweepingly that we cannot reduce our Debt by half so much during the next as we did during the last year. It was a grievous mistake, and grievously must it yet be answered for.—New York Tribune.

WHISKEY AND NEWSPAPERS.—A glass of whiskey is manufactured from perhaps a dozen grains of corn, the value of which is too small to be estimated. A glass of this mixture sells for a dime, and if of a good brand is considered well worth the money. It is drank in a minute or two. It fires the brain, sharpens the appetite, deranges and weakens the physical system. On the same side-board on which the deleterious beverage is served lies a news-paper. It is covered with half a million of types—it brings intelligence from the four quarters of the globe. The newspaper costs less than the glass of grog—the juice of a few grains of corn—but it is no less strange than true that there is a large number of people who thing corn juice cheap and newspapers dear.

THE BEAVER ARGUS.

J. WEYAND,
EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

April 17th, 1867.

THE purchase by this Government of all the territory owned by Russia, on this continent, is just now exciting the comments of our press. The price paid is seven millions of dollars in gold. The territory purchased is equal in area to five or six of our largest States, and contains some 35 or 40,000 inhabitants.

HENRY J. RAYMOND was on Saturday last nominated by the President for the Austrian Mission. Mr. Raymond is chief editor of the New York Times, and figured extensively in the Philadelphia Convention of last Summer. It is very likely that his nomination will be rejected, as it is generally given out that the Senate will reject all politicians connected with that "Bread and Butter" movement.

THE Union State Central Committee which met at Harrisburg on Tuesday of last week was well attended—its memborr being present from all parts of the State. After a harmonious session the committee decided on holding the next State Convention at Williamsport, on Wednesday the 26th day of June. The Chairman, Col. Jordan, was ordered to issue the usual call for the convention.

A STATE CONVENTION of the Union Republican party of New York was held at Syracuse last week for the purpose of selecting delegates to a Constitutional Convention to be held in that State during the approaching summer.—After the delegates were all appointed, (and they are among the ablest men in the State,) the following resolution was offered and unanimously adopted by the Convention:

"Resolved, That the delegates to the coming Constitutional Convention, this day appointed, be instructed to support by every honorable means an amendment to the Constitution giving to the black man the same rights of ballot as to the white man."

AN important movement was recently set on foot by the Senators and Representatives in Congress, having for its object the distribution of sound political reading matter for the Southern States. Congress itself (the members personally) subscribed nine thousand dollars, and other contributions are fast pouring in for the same purpose. This movement properly carried forward, together with the fact that such men as Gov. Orr of South Carolina repudiate the Democratic party, leads to the opinion that but a short time will elapse until the whole South is Unionized and probably "radicalized."

THE Free Railroad Bill has, as we expected, been defeated in the Senate. The vote on its passage will be found in another column. An annalization of it will show that there were but two Democrats in the Senate who favored its passage, while there were nine of that party who went against it. Ten Republicans voted for the Bill, and ten opposed it. Another noticable feature of the vote is the fact that but one Senator from the immediate western portion of the State, (Searight of Westmoreland) a Democrat, went against a genuine free Railroad law. The attempt therefore to make it appear that the Democrats would have passed a general railroad law if they would have had a majority in the Legislature, is up-set by the fact that they contributed a great many more men, in proportion to their strength, to kill such a measure, than we did.

Gov. Geary as a Temperance Man

The Harrisburg correspondent of the Chambersburg Repository, in speaking of matters at the State Capital, in the last number of that paper makes use of the following, in relation to the Governor's temperance proclivities:

"Entertainments were the order of the evenings last week. Speaker Hall gave a brilliant one at Mrs. Epsy's on Wednesday, which was attended by all the Senators, Governor, all the heads of departmentss and a number of distinguished gentlemen especially invited, and on Thursday evening Gov. Geary entertained all the branches of the government and many others at the Executive Mansion. It was a noticeable feature of Gov. Geary's entertainment, which was a most brilliant affair, that cold water was the only beverage offered the guests. The result was that every man got home in his own hat and overcoat, and there were no head-aches in the morning to be settled by soda-punches or cock-tails. He enforces his total abstinence principles with inflexible consistency, and is setting a noble example to the people of the great State that has honored him."

GENERAL SHERMAN in a speech in New York, Thursday evening, said he had just received a letter from Gov. Brown, of Georgia, stating that the movement towards reconstruction in the Southern States was going on happily, and that soon they would acquiesce in the measures proposed by Congress.—News Item.

Information from nearly every quarter in the Southern States goes to show that the people as a general thing are satisfied with the action of Congress, and if now left alone but a short time would elapse until peace, plenty and order would be restored among them.—But a set of leading Southern men, who were instrumental in working up the rebellion, and who now find themselves ineligible to hold office in consequence of their treason, are ill at ease, and intent on exciting all the disaffection possible. With this in view, several of them from quite a number of the rebel States have appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States to set aside the Reconstruction Act. They will fail in this, but the effort indicates that the people of those States are not to have the long hoped for quiet if there is any way of preventing it, until the leading rebels are again enfranchised and restored to power. And what is more contemptible still, the copperheads of the northern States applaud their conduct and encourage them to go ahead in their anti-reconstruction work.

"HUNTING tigers," once said an enthusiastic Englishman, "is a very exhilirating amusement, but when the tigers hunt you, the sport is very much changed." We wonder if there is not some one in Beaver county just now who could, from his own experience, vouch for the truth of what the Englishman said.

AN erroneous impression prevails in some quarters to the effect that the Legislature which has just adjourned, raised the pay of its members to 1,350. Extravagant, and inefficient as it was in many respects, the raising of their own wages cannot be laid to their charge. The pay this session was just the same as it was the preceding one.

Jefferson Davis's Greeting.

We have not seen one Southern paper which denounces the Reconstruction law as insulting and barbaric, and Congress as a body of traitors and tyrants, which does not hail the Democratic success in Connecticut as a Southern victory. There is not one paper of the kind which does not advise postponement of reconstruction, in the hope that other Democratic successes will gain for the Rebel States unconditional representation in Congress, and the ultimate repeal of the law. As during the war the Democratic party was the acknowledged champion of secession and rebellion, so is it now of the rebellious spirit which survives the dispersion of the Rebel armies.

Mr. Jefferson Davis has recently added his rejoicing to those of the Democrats in Connecticut, and assured them of his sympathies. As he mourned when Grant drove Lee from Richmond, when Sherman carried the Stars and Stripes through the heart of the South, so he mourned over every Republican triumph at the polls; and as he rejoiced when Union troops were routed at Chancellorsville, he rejoices over the election of Mr. English.—That is very natural—we do not expect the leader of the Rebellion to exult in any success of the party which crushed it—but it is also very significant. Great must be the comfort felt by the Democrats to know that Mr. Davis believes "the Connecticut election to be one of which that State may well be proud." It is a compliment which we rejoice he never paid to the Republican party; we ask approval from the loyal people, and not from the man who sought to destroy the Union.

Jefferson Davis rejoices in the Connecticut election because to him it "appears to be the turning point in the political struggle, and will have a great effect on the political balance of power, and on succeeding elections." In almost these very words he bade the Rebel armies take new hope from the Democratic victories in 1862. He thought the election of Horatio Seymour in New-York the turning point of the war, as he now affects to believe that the election of Mr. English indicates the readiness of the North to abondon the party which saved the Union.

Let the Conservatives and Democrats make the most of Jeff. Davis's pride in their Connecticut victory. We do not envy them the approval and alliance of a man who did his utmost to divide the Republic, and to establish an emp're upon Slavery. They may profit, if they can, by the fact that Andrew Johnson's administration can only be sustained in a way which encourages the hopes of the chiefs of the Rebellion. Every vote for his policy is a vote for the policy of Jefferson Davis, and the fellowship is not of our making. We are perfectly content that Mr. Davis should be proud of the Democrats, and that the Democrats should be proud of Mr. Davis.—N. Y. Tribune.

IT has been said that the brightest men in any profession and walk in life have fallen victims of intemperance. We do not believe this at all. No doubt some brilliant men have become drunkards, but the race are usually men of narrow minds or low associations, or both. It is not uncommon to magnify the ability, or skill or bearing of an intemperate person—to call the drunken Doctor a prodigy of skill, to place the lawyer at the head of the Bar, and to declare even the tippling clergyman a "great preacher." The secret of all this judgement, we imagine, [illegible] what Dean Swift said about admiring a dog that stands on his hind legs—we wonder not that he does it so well, but that he does it at all. So it is, about the performances of intoxicated men—they pass for a great deal more than is in them, because they are better than one could expect of persons of their habits.—The mistake to which we refer, about the brightness of hard-drinkers, has a bad effect on some minds ambitious of being thought bright, suggesting a dangerous and deceitful pathway to the attainment.—Pittsburg Commercial.

LEGISLATIVE.

HARRISBURG, April 10, 1867.

HOUSE.

The vote defeating the act allowing the Erie and Allegheny Railroad to cannect with the New York and Erie and Atlantic and Great Western was reconsidered, and the bill passed finally.

A supplement to the Allegheny Vally Railroad was passed.

Act relating to taxes in the city of Pittsburgh was negatived.

The Conference Committee on the points of difference on the appropriation bill made a report. After being read it was fiercely attacked by Mr Boyle. He said that in the attempt to retrench they had stricken out the provisions for old soldiers, and had increased the salaries of officers, continued the State Agency, and other appropriations which should be dispensed with.

Mr. Waddle said that it was impossible for the committee to agree upon any one point without concession. They agreed to the report sooner than have an extra session.—The report was negatived, forty-one ayes to forty-nine nays.

The result creating great confusion, afterwards the vote was reconsidered, and the report was recommitted.

SENATE.

The Kittanning and Rural Valley Railroad bill passed finally.

The report of the Senate Committee of Conference on the appropriation bill was accepted.

Mr. Bigham moved to consider the genuine Free Railroad bill, which was lost by the following vote

YEAS—12.

NAYS—19.

So the free railroad bill fails this session.

Senator Graham was unanimously nominated for Speaker in the Republican caucus.

Mr. Waddle, chairman of the Conference Committee on the appropriated bill, reported that the House had no committee to meet with them, therefore he had to present the same report, which was adopted by 59 to 31.

HARRISBURG, April 11, 1867.

SENATE.

Act to change the rates of interest, and act allowing parties interested to testify, were both lost.

In accordance with the provision of the Constitution, the Senate proceeded to elect a Speaker, and J. L. Graham, of Allegheny, was elected, the Democrats voting for Wm. A. Wallace.

Speaker Hall, before retiring, made a few remarks, thanking the Senate for their support during his term.

HOUSE.

Mr. Waddel offered a resolution that a Committee be appointed to investigate what interest officers and directors of railroad companies exercised during the Legislature, and that the committee be allowed to file their report with the Clerk of the House before the first of June. Agreed to.

Mr. Markley offered a resolution of thanks to Speaker Glass. Mr. Meckling offered a resolution of thanks to the officers of the House. Both were agreed to. Speaker Glass was presented with china and silver sets, gold watch and silver salver from members of both sides and officers. Speeches were made by Waddell, Jones, Davis, Quigley, and Clerks Benedict and McAfee. Speaker Glass, in his remarks, charged the Senate with the responsibility of defeating the free railroad law At twelve o'clock, he declared the House adjourned sine die.

THE following report was submitted a few days ago to the Secretary of war, by a gentleman well known some years ago to the citizens of this county. He is a son of the late Dr. Milo Adams, and has made the west his home for the last ten or twelve years. The latter portion of this time has been occupied in the exploration of the River and country of which he speaks in the report.

The Colorado of the West.

ADAMS'S REPORT.

Hon E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War.

Sir: I take the liberty in this communication to call your attention to a few facts in reference to the great commercial importance of the Colorado of the West, as being the central route between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. In the individual and difficult enterprise of demonstrating that it was capable of being ascended with steamers for over 620 miles from its mouth, I have, in connection with Capt. Trueworthy, been engaged for the last three years. In the Spring of 1864 I descended the river 350 miles on a small raft, everywhere seeing the most unmistakable evidence that this natural throughfare had been much misrepresented by published reports as well as by the exaggerated statements of those who professed to be familiar with the rapids, canyons, &c., of the same. I made my representations to Capt. Trueworthy of San Francisco, who consented to come to the Colorado for the purpose of relieving the mining community of the imposition which was practiced upon them, as well as upon the Government by the only Steam Navigation Company on the river which, for over ten years, had monapolized the entire trade of the Colorado for 300 miles from the Gulf. This company, being a branch of the powerful combination Navigation Company of California, which controls at will the [illegible] navigable waters of the State every effort was made in San Francisco to prevent the expedition from starting upon its mission. Insurance companies lent their aid, by refusing to grant a policy of insurance upon the steamer, schooner and cargo going to the mouth of the river, after agreeing to insure these upon the same terms as they had other vessels going to the same destination. Arriving at the mouth of the river without insurance, opposition manifested itself in a more formidable manner to defeat the purpose of demonstrating that the navigation of this highway is national in its character. At this time there was a bill drawn up to secure from Congress an appropriation of each alternate section of the most valuable mineral lands along the river, for 700 miles, and also to get the sum of $250,000 appropriated for the purpose of removing obstructions, said to prevent the navigation of the river, which have subsequently been proved to have existed only in the imagination of those seeking to practice a gigantic fraud upon the Government. In proportion as the steamer ascended, in that proportion were the means the most revolting in their character adopted to prevent the success of the enterprise, by frequent efforts to injure her boiler, fire her cabin, destroy her machinery, and by cutting down and floating off the timber for miles along the most destitute localities, that sufficient wood might not be obtained for steam purposes. These are but a few of the efforts which were made by those interested in misrepresenting the Colorado River. In my communication in The Scientific Press, of San Francisco, and in other papers published in that city, (now in my possession), I have given the facts in full.

As we approached localities said not to be navigable, the river increased in depth, from the fact that it became narrower, and was confined generally for the last 100 miles, in a succession of canyons, where the rock in many places on both sides rose perpendicularly from 800 to 1,000 feet. At these places we unexpectedly found the current to run, with the single exception of the rapids, but 2½ miles an hour, where the fall was from eighteen inches to four feet, in from 120 to 400 yards. Our steamer was 130 feet in length, towing a barge 136 feet, with over 100 tons of freight, passed "Explorer's Rock" before we were aware of the fact. This was the spot where the steamer Explorer (54 feet long), of Lieut. Ives's expedition, struck, and returned. I made an examination of this rock, and found it to be two inches under the surface, one foot across the top, in the shape of a cone. On each side of this there was a smooth current of water from 90 to 150 feet in breadth, the water running 2½ miles per hour, with an average depth of from 6 to 15 feet.

The most difficult rapids we encountered were "Roaring Rapids," the engraving of which is given in Lieut. Ives's report. The steamer and barge was seven minutes in ascending these. The fall here was four feet in 120 yards, when we entered upon a smooth sheet of water.

At this point we met several persons coming down the river from Callville (Utah), who informed us that the persons who had expected the freight by the steamer had left, in consequence of having received letters from those who had opposed the enterprise from the first, informing them that the steamer was broken down and the expedition abandoned. The steamer, barge and cargo then decended the river to "Eldorado Canyon," when Capt. Trueworthy and I crossed the country to Salt Lake City, arriving in time to read the Telegraphic dispactes from San Francisco confirming the foregoing unfounded letters. From this place to Salt Lake, we found an excellent road, capable of being traveled at all seasons of the year. Along this are situated 42 beautiful cities and towns, containing in all about 60,000 inhabitants. The inhabitants living in brick, stone, and adobe houses. Cotton and woolen mills were in successful operation; while the green fields of grain and cotton and the fruit trees, gardens, and vineyards, presented a cheerful appearance, as they suddenly burst upon our view.

By the success of this trip up the river, it was demonstrated that goods could be delivered at Callville (620 miles from the mouth of the river), at all seasons at a freight, from San Francisco or New York, of 4 cents per pound, or 12 cents to Salt Lake City—making a difference in favor of this route of 10 cents per pound.

On our return to San Francisco, the most violent efforts were renewed to prevent the facts respecting the success of the expedition being brought to the knowledge of the public. Suits were, for over a year, instituted against Capt. Trueworthy by the Combination Navigation Company, to prevent his return to the Colorado River. His boats on the Colorado were meantime cut adrift and sent to the ocean. All communication between there and San Francisco was prevented by taking the letters and opening and destroying them. Meantime the influence of the Navigation Company was placing upon the statutes of California an act tending to repudiate the currency of the nation. I would not allude so minutely to these facts were it not that I desire that the public should know the real character of those influences which have operated to misrepresent this important throughfare.

I started from San Francisco in May, 1866, for the Columbia River, Oregon, to negotiate for a steamer for the Colorado. None of the idle steamers of the Combination Company would be sold, unless the party buying would bind themselves not to take them on the Colorado. At Lewiston, on the Columbia, hearing that a ship had started from San Francisco with a cargo for Salt Lake City, I struck south 1,300 miles, to a point on the Colorado above Callville. Here I built a raft, and descended the river 100 miles to La Paz, where I met the steamer and cargo, and re-ascended the river to Callville, the water being two feet higher than at the time of my first trip. From this cause the rapids were less difficult to overcome, the first trip of the steamer being in February, when the river was four inches lower than when the expedition of Ives was undertaken. One mile above Callville was a canyon known as "Big Canyon." This was represented as being the largest on the river. I passed up to the head of this, built another raft, and descended through the same to Callville.

Thus far I found no insurmountable obstructions to navigation. I ascertained this to be about ten miles in length. From an eminence at the head of this canyon I could see an open valley, 60 miles in length, extending to the [illegible] the country has been considered a terra incognita. From my observations, and from information received from Indians, and from the maps and correspondents in the Historical Society's library at Salt Lake City, I am satisfied that there are none of those dangerous obstructions which have been represented by those who may have viewed them at a distance, and those imaginary canyons and rapids, for several hundred miles below, had almost disappeared at the approach of the steamer.

I should have ascended the river farther, but my means were exhausted, the explorations of the last two years and a half being attended with great pecuniary embarrassment to Capt. Trueworthy as well as myself. If an expedition should be sent out by the Government, to explore the river and country above, I should be glad to be placed in a position to consummate an enterprise which has been sustained without co-operation or assistance from any quarter. I believe that the river can be made navigable at little expense, to a point 680 miles from its mouth, in the 41st parallel of latitude, or where the line of the Union Pacific Railroad crosses the Green River, making the entire extent of navigation over 1,400 miles.

The grand idea of the early explorers of the Western Continent was a continued water-line from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Subsequent investigations have proved this impracticable; yet the essential idea may be carried out by a judicious amalgamation of railroad and water communication. By this the wealth of the richest agricultural and mineral sections of Colorado, Utah, New-Mexico, Nevada and Arizona will find an outlet to the ocean; without taking into consideration the resources of Coal, Salt, and Timber, which it must inevitable develope, or the practicabilty of traveling a route unobstructed by the snows of Sierra Nevada.

Some conception may be formed of the mineral wealth along the entire length of the Colrado and its tributaries, when it is taken into consideration that more copper ore alone is taken out of a single locality of one-half mile square on the Lower Colorado than all the steamers in the river can convey to the Gulf, where it commands $200 per tun. At the mouth of the Colorado there is a safe harbor, six miles in extent, capable of receiving ships drawing 24 feet of water. This harbor was first entered by Capt. Trueworthy and myself three years since.

From a point 25 miles above this harbor, a valley entered on each side of the river from seven to twelve miles, and running along the same for a distance of over 100 miles. The soil is remarkable rich, and capable of the highest state of cultivation. This is demonstrated by the immense yield under the imperfect system adopted by the Indians. Along the river above are also valleys from 10 to 20 miles in length with an abundance of timber, (Cottonwood Willow and Muskeet.) At Buckskin Mountain, about 800 miles from the mouth of the river, there is an abundance of the finest Pine on each side of the same. The lumber used at the present time along the Colorado is brought from Oregon, and commands $200 per 1,000 feet. By the opening up of the Colorado, Government has already saved thousands of dolras in the transportation of military stores, and a fresh impetus has been given to the resources of Arizona.

Three years since two steamers could do the trade of the Colorado, now, eight are employed, and are insufficient. Thirty-seven ships and one ocean steamer have gone to the mouth of the river within the last six months, while the trade of San Francisco has increased within the same time over $1,500,000. These are but a few of the results following the enterprise of navigating the Colorado. Since its inauguration, every obstacle which power or money could bring into requisition has been brought to bear to defeat such success, and to misrepresent the most important river flowing into the Pacific Ocean.

I feel that it is imposible for me to do justice to the important subject to which I have called your attention. I am satisfied, if another exploration is ordered, that it will have the grand result of proving this misrepresented stream to be the central route which is to bind us more firmly in the bonds of a common nationality, and to reflect honor upon your administration. Feeling assured that you will give this subject the consideration it demands, I have the honor to be, very respectfully yours,

SAMUEL ADAMS.

Buckeye
Mower and Reaper!
Again Triumphant!

This extensively known, and deservedly popular Machine was submitted to the most vigorous test of its superiorty, at a trial of competing machines that took place under the management of the New York Society, at Auburn, N. Y., in July 1866. The committee consisted of eleven judges, and forty machines were entered as contestants for the prize.—The trial lasted three weeks and the tests were most thorough. The result was announced at the State Fair held at Saratoga on the 12th of Sept. last, and the

was then awarded the Buckeye
as the machine
Superior to All Others.

A similar testimony was awarded it in the same State, in 1865. This machine is regarded by the thousands who can speak from experience, as the Best in the World, and is manufactured by the incorporated Company of

C. AULTMAN & CO.
Canton, O.

Persons wanting any of these machines, can have them by applying to the undersigned, who is the Agent for Beaver county.

Having secured the Agency for the Empire Sewing Machine!

I respectfully solicit an examination of the same by the public.

THIS Machine is constructed on a new principle of mechanism, possessing many rare and valuable improvements, having been examined by the most profound experts, and pronounced to be simplicity and perfection combined.

In a mechanical point of view, the advantages we claim for the "EMPIRE MACHINE," are—

1st.—The method of driving the Needle Bar by a compound crank, which produces the same action as heretofore obtained by means of a Cam; but in a more durable and noiseless manner.

2d.—We use a rotating shaft above the table, and thus are enabled to give all the room required under the arm; without detriment to the durability of Machines; having a bearing directly over the Needle Bar.

3d.—Our Feed Wheel is a friction feed, and so constructed that there is but one joint in transmitting the motion from the rock shaft to the wheel, and unlike all others, cannot be effected by oil or dust.

4th.—The Rock Shaft that works the Feed motion also drives the Shuttle. The bearings of this Shaft and Centres are hardened steel and adjustable, so that we can take up the lost motion at will.

The following are the principal objections urged against Sewing Machines:
1. Excessive fatigue to the operator.
2. Liability to get out of order.
3. Expense, trouble, and loss of time in repairing.
4. Incapacity to sew every description of material.
5. Disagreeable noise while in operation.

The Empire Sewing Machine is Exempt from all these Objections.

It has a straight needle, perpendicular action, makes the LOCK or SHUTTLE STITCH, which will NEITHER RIP nor RAVEL, and is alike on both sides; performs perfect sewing on every description of material, from Leather to the finest Nansook Muslin, with cotton, linen, or silk thread, from the coarsest to the finest number.

IT HEMS, FELLS, BINDS, BRAIDS, TUCKS, QUILTS, PLAITS, and GATHERS.

Having neither CAM nor COG WHEEL, and the least possible friction, it runs as smooth as glass, and is

Emphatically a Noiseless Machine

LADIES SEMINARY.

THE Seminary on Main Street will be opened for young ladies on next Tuesday, 23d inst. I have made arrangements with Miss Mary J. Anderson to take charge of the PRIMARY DEPARTMENT. Little boys and girls will be admitted into this department. Tuition rates will be the same for the present, as in the other Seminary. I expect the assistance of Miss Thompson & Mrs. Babcock, so well and favorably known, and to increase the corps of Teachers against the next term.

I will be prepared to accommodate any boarders who may be present at the opening, or at any time during the term. As I did not desire many boarders, I thought it best not to advertise sooner, but to be prepared for a full school at opening of Fall Term. I will however, accommodate any who may wish to attend with us during the first session.

A full course, including Music, Painting, Drawing, &c., will be taught. I will give the school my personal supervision.

BOROUGH ORDINANCE.

BE it enacted by the Town Council of the borough of Beaver, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same.

That on and after the 28th day of April, A. SEC. 2. That it shall be the duty of the High Constable of the borough aforesaid, and he is hereby authorized and required, without any special warrant or other authority than this ordinance to seize and secure any such animal of the horse or hog kind that may be found running at large within the limits aforesaid, and sell the same within six days after such seizure, at public sale, after having first given notice of time and place of sale, by at least three advertisements put up in the most public place in said borough, at least four days before the day of said sale. And after making such sale, said Constable shall deduct out of the proceeds thereof, the amount of the fine or penalty imposed by the first section of this ordinance together with all costs, charges and expenses attending the seizure, keeping and sale of said animals, and the balance if any, he shall pay over to the owner or owners thereof upon demand made of him for the same. Fine Apples.—Andrew Waterson, Esq., of Brighton township, has placed us under obligations for a lot of choice apples, of the Russet species.

A Handsome Contribution.—We neglected to notice last week that the Economy Society of this county recently made a donation for the relief of the South, amounting to one thousand dollars.

Patents Issued.—Within the last week or ten days patents were issued to the following named persons, now or formerly residents of this county:

To Silas Merrick Esq New Brighton for improvement in Railway cars.

To Rev. S. K. Kane late of this county, now of Allegheny, for patent Petroleum Soap.

Lime.—Mr. Dunn, formerly of Baden, this county, now of Vanport, having purchased the "Mulvannon property" at the latter place, intends to engage extensively and permanently in the Lime burning business. He has had considerable experience in its manufacture, and is fully competent to make an excellent article. Being well supplied with teams, &c., he will also be able to deliver his lime at all convenient points, and on the shortest notice. Persons in need of lime for building or other purposes would do well to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere.

Found Dead.—On Saturday morning last, an old man named Thomas M'Peak was found dead on the farm of Peter Martin, in Chartiers township. He was a man of excessive intemperate habits and had provided himself with two bottles of whiskey, one of which was found on his person when discovered. It is supposed that having drank to great excess, he sank down on the spot referred to, where he perished from exposure, as the weather was quite cold. A jury of inquest was summoned, who returned a verdict in accordance with the foregoing facts.—Wash. Rep.

The Board of Trustees of Washington and Jefferson College have conferred the honorary degree of Master of Arts upon his excellency, Governor Geary. The Governor was formerly a student in this institution, as were also his brother and his lamented son. The honor is worthily bestowed.—Washington Reporter.

Great Oil Receipts.—During the past four days the receipts of petroleum at the port of Pittsburgh have reached the unprecedented amount of ninety-seven thousand two hundred and eighty-four barrels—the greatest amount ever received in the same duration of time since the establishment of the oil business. This would indicate that the oil yield has not diminished to any remarkable extent.—Pitts. Com. of April 12.

A Sensible and Novel Idea.—An exchange in canvassing the different methods of suppressing the use of intoxicating drinks as a beverage gives its opinion as follows, and urges the passage of laws carrying it into effect:

"Leave the sale of liquors free, and license the drinkers. As it is the drinking, and not the selling, that does the mischief, let the drinker pay the bill. And as there are more drinkers than sellers, the system, if faithfully carried out, would yield a greater revenue than the present. If it is right to raise revenue from this source, let us have all we can get. The license should provide that no man should be entitled to drink unless he first got a license. And any bar keeper who should sell to an unlicensed party should be subject to a fine and imprisonment. The license should be annual, and the sum charged should be from $20 to $100. No young man should be allowed a license till he is sixteen, and then, until twenty-one years of age, only a beer license at moderate charge. After he was twenty-one he could vote, drink, and chew tobacco upon payment of license. Some men whose constitutions utterly unfit them for potations, should be refused a license altogether. They are 'non-insurable.' Before taking out his license a citizen would have time to reflect; and they would have to pay in advance for the glorious privilege of making beasts of themselves.

Scientific Lectures.—We learn that the citizens of New Brighton and vicinity have recently had a rich treat in the way of scientific lectures. Dr. Samuel Musser announced a week or ten days ago, by large handbills, that he would on a stated evening, deliver a lecture in that place on the origin of the negro race. The evening came, but the audience was slim; and the lecture is said to have been a ponderous one. At about the same time notices were stuck up in different parts of the town, that a Mr. Sam. Bow, an American citizen of African descent, who has made comparative anatomy a special study for some time, would afterwards deliver a lecture on the origin of the "Musser Tribe." "Admittance for gentleman and lady 25 cts.—white folks, half price." Our reporter failed to get the particulars of the last gathering, nor did he ascertain the number of persons present, the general character of the lecture, nor the amount of cash taken at the door.

Railroad Enterprises.—Before the adjournment of the Legislature, two railroad bills were passed which affect our county, and the construction of which will prove very advantageous to it. The one compels the Western Pennsylvania to build a railroad from Freeport to New Castle, via of Butler and the Conoquenessing creek, and authorizes it to build a branch by the vallies of Brush and Pine creeks to Pittsburgh. The other authorizes the Erie & Pittsburgh R. R. to extend their road from New Castle to Pittsburgh, and increases their capital 1,000,000 to enable them to construct it.

Col Quay, of this county, had charge of both bills, and it is mainly due to his energy and influence that they became laws. The Erie and Pittsburgh road will now go on and locate their road this summer; and there is a prospect that the railroad in which the people of the northeastern portion of our county are so much interested will now be built with little delay.

Death Warrant Received.—On Saturday last Sheriff Smith received the Governor's warrant, assigning Wednesday, the 15th of May, between the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon and three o'clock in the afternoon, for the execution of Fogler, now lying in jail under sentence of death. Soon after its receipt, the Sheriff, in company with Rev. Dr. Brownson and Rev. Mr. Watkins, proceeded to the prisoner's cell and read the warrant in his hearing. He listened to the warrant with a considerable degree of composure, but in the conversation that took place during the solemn interview he manifested a good deal of emotion, and repeated that he had been expecting the warrant for some days and was not surprised that so early a day was fixed for the execution. He receives kindly the frequent visits of his spiritual advisers and always asks that they be repeated.—Wash. Reporter.

A Provoking Blunder.—In the advertisement, last week, headed "To Builders, &c.," the name of John Winans was attached to it in place of John Miner. We did not happen to be in when proof was taken of the advertisement, or the blunder would doubtless have been corrected. See it in its corrected form this week.

Honor Conferred.—From the Philadelphia Bulletin of a few days ago, we learn that at the commencement exercises of the Philadelphia University of Medicine and Surgery held in that institution a few days ago, the degree of —— was conferred on our fellow-citizen, Dr. J. C. Levis. This is an honor of which he may well take a pride.

County Sunday School Union.—The preliminary steps were taken on Sunday last in the Presbyterian Church of this place to organize a County Sabbath School Union, irrespective of denominational opinions. A committee, composed of Rev. J. F. Dravo, Col. Coe and J. C. Wilson Esq. was appointed to issue a call to the Schools of the county, and invite them to send delegates to a county convention to be held here on the 2d and 3d days of May.

Temperance.—Rev. J. A. Davidson lectured on last Saturday evening in the M. E. Church of Bridgewater on the subject of temperance, on Sunday afternoon to the children of the various Sabbath Schools in this place, and on Sunday evening again in Bridgewater. On this, (Wednesday evening) he will lecture in Rochester, on to-morrow evening in Beaver, and on Friday evening in the Methodist Protestant Church of New Brighton. The intention, we believe is to organize a Good Templar organization in each of the places named, if this has not already been done.

Justices Commissions.—We are requested to state that Commissions have been received at the office of the Register & Recorder, for the following named persons, who were recently elected as Justices of the Peace.

K. J. McCormick, Samuel Gormley, Thomas Conway, Ephraim Smith, John McDonald, Reuben Watt, Chas. W. Taylor, John M. Srodes, William Thomas, Jas. A. Anderson, William Whan, Henry Bryan, Robert McKeage.

See F. A. Fortunes advertisement in this weeks paper. Mr. F. is one of our most successful business men, and his success is traceable to the fact that he studies to please his customers, and sells them goods at the lowest possible rates.

Sudden Death.—Mr. James Black, a well-known and highly respectable citizen of Rochester township, died on Tuesday night last. He had been pursuing his usual avocations about the barn during the day, and was in excellent health. On Wednesday morning, being called for breakfast and no response made, a member of the family went to his room and found him stiff and cold in death—An examination made by Dr. Simpson showed that he had died from "ossification of the heart." Mr. Black was one of the oldest residents of the county, having been born before its organization, on 6th April, 1801, on the same tract of land where during the entire period of his life—over sixty-six years, he resided and finally died. His remains were followed to their last resting place on Friday by a large concourse of sympathizing friends.

Mail Letting.—The contract for carrying the mail between this place and Rochester has been given to Mr. Wm. P. Alcorn, of Bridgewater, for the sum of $315 per year.—Mr. John S. Veder has been the contractor for some time past.

Sabbath School Convention.

The undersigned having been appointed a committee to invite the various Sabbath Schools of the county to send delegates to a Sabbath School Convention to be held in Beaver, on the 2d and 3d days of May, respectfully urge the Ministers of the various churches, the Superintendents and teachers of the different Schools and the parents of Scholars, to unite in the selection of delegates, and to take such other action as may seem necessary to have their schools represented in the convention. The convention will be addressed by able speakers from abroad. All are invited to attend.

Beaver—its Streets, &c.

Editor Argus: Nature, with a munificence scarcely surpassed, has crowned Beaver and surroundings with more than royal favor; stretching out, in extended amplitude, long lines of scenery, as varied as beautiful, inspiring in the beholder sentiments and emotions of beauty and moral elevation. The original proprietor, in selecting the site, and laying it out, as a village home, seemed to have been fully impressed with the enlarged and generous teachings of nature. The evidence of this is found in the number of public squares, and broad streets, giving ample room for passage way, and yet reserving sufficient space for growing long lines of shade trees to beautify and adorn these wide avenues, harmonizing the plan of the town with the grand revealments of nature, making it the attractive home of culture and refined taste.

It is said by philosophers to be a law of our nature to take on and assimilate the associations and surroundings of life. The material is blended with the moral and intellectual. The sublime and grand in nature are re-produced in the individual life. Wild mountain scenery has ever been the nursery of freedom.—How strangely the scenes of childhood, the little streamlet, the open plain, the lofty mountain, are blended in the riper experience and thoughts of manhood.

In the light of these facts, the stranger, in approaching our town, entering over the "heights" of the elevated surroundings, or passing through the gateways cut by the floods of buried centuries, as the glories of nature, like some enchanting panorama, opens upon his vision, would conclude that here dwells a people of pure morals and elevated tastes—a people distinguished by all that enters into the high possibilities of human existence.—How great his disappointment! How utter the revulsion of feeling, as descending from the "mount of vision," he enters the town, and discovers its public squares, its broad avenues, devoted to raising swine—its beautiful works, its grassy plots, rooted and plowed by hogs!

Are our people so entirely destitute of all taste, of all sense of decency, as to quietly and tamely submit to such an outrage upon every feeling, every sentiment inculcated by the beauties of surrounding nature? As a people we boast of our educational advantages, of the refinement of our community. We send out our catalogues from our academies, glorifying nature, and inviting the young of other communities to avail themselves of these rare advantages, and blend with the developments of mind the high inspirings of nature. What must be their feeling of disgust, on entering our town, ~~to find it rivalling the roughest~~ plowed potato patch in the land! The comments made by strangers upon the utter want of taste and energy of our people, which one is forced to hear, is indeed humiliating; and all the more so because too true. Let the reader take a walk and view the Diamond square, under the very shadow of the Court House, and within a stone's throw of the female college, and see its dilapidated, forlorn, and forsaken look, and then continue your walk down to the broad street fronting on the river, presenting a view of nature of unsurpassed lovliness. At your feet rolls in majestic quietness the waters of the Ohio river, on the opposite bank, rise a long line of bluff hills, ribbed and furrowed by the rains of ages, covered by forest trees of primeval growth, tastefully interspersed with tall and well-proportioned evergreens.—And then contrast with this beautiful array of nature's handiwork, the rooted and wretched condition of the street; and if you do not blush, then you have lost all sense of shame.

I would appeal to the Town Council recently elected to take immediate action to remove this public shame, and thus preserve the fair name of our community.

I am informed that there is a lack of moral courage to enact and enforce reforms of admitted importance. I hope this cannot be truthfully affirmed of the present Council, but that, true to the pressing wants of the hour, they will enact and enforce such laws as will remove all just grounds of complaint, and thus merit the praise of every good citizen.

A Citizen.

Correspondence.

The following letter from Senator Graham of Allegheny county was received by one of our citizens a few days ago, which we are requested to publish in the Argus.

Senate Chamber,
Harrisburg, April 5th, 1867.

Dear Sir: Yours of the 3d is before me, and in reply to your inquiry, I most cheerfully exhonorate Col. Taylor from any improper or unworthy motive in the vote which he cast for the passage of the "Bill" referred to.

The "Bill" had passed through the "Senate" without opposition or objection from any "Senator."

When it was returned with the "Governor's veto" it was passed over that "veto" by a two-thirds vote, those who voted for it having the assurance that it would be followed immediately by another meeting all the objections of the Governor. Such a bill was immediately introduced, passed, and approved by the Governor.

It was also generally understood that the parties interested in the passage of the original "Bill, when they ascertained that it was objectionable to the Governor, desired him to return it to the Senate that its objectionable features might be removed; but by some misunderstanding, it was not returned, an in consequence there was considerable feeling on the subject by the friends of the bill. I have never heard the motives of Colonel Taylor impugned in reference to the vote he cast, and while I differed from him in regard to the propriety of his action, I fully believe that he was actuated by pure and honest convictions. Very Respectfully

James L. Graham.

Sale of a Wife.—We complain of the Mormons for their plurality of wives, and of the Indians for their readiness to dispose of their wives at any time for a consideration, but we believe that Fulton county can beat both in disposing of a wife and children by regular article of agreement and bill of sale. Mr. Paul M. Dishong, of the classical township of Belfast, in Fulton county, and his lovely Mary Ann, certainly a fruitful and for aught we can see a faithful wife, mutually agreed that the said lovely Mary Ann should be sold to Mr. James Wilson, "which is the churn pedler," for the sum of seventeen dollars in cash or approved country produce, and the churn pedlar and his newly purchased wife were to go away on or before the 1st of April last, and "to get away the best way they can," and said pedlar is further empowered to wallop the children and exercise generally the rights and prerogatives of the first husband. We give herewith the article of agreement made and solemnly executed between the parties, and assure our readers that it is a true copy of the original document, made in good faith, and we presume carried out by the parties. Here it is:

Belfast Township, Feb. 14th, A. D., 1867.

Artikle of agreement made and fully agreead upon this year and date above written, between Paul M Dishong & Wife and James Wilson. The conditions of this agreement are such: Paul M. Dishong doth agree to bind and obligate himself that he Will Not disturb his Wife, Nor Wilson (the churn pedler) and is Willing that Mary Ann Dishong, his Wife, and children, go with James Wilson; and Paul W. Dishong is willing to give her what Property she claims in the house, and also agrees for them to get away on or before the first day of April, 1867, and also to get away the best way they can. Paul M. Dishong is to have his oldest Daughter in the Spring of 1869, when calling for her, Mary Catherine, and his wife Doeth agree [illegible], & the afore said Wilson, [illegible] to go so far a way. but what Paul M. Dishong can cum and see them, and Will Be treated with respect. Paul M. Dishong is to have seventeen dollars in money for a fore said Wife and Children, or the amount of a bill of accounts, or to have the Cow, and also to have his Bed, & Plate, & Bucket, & Lamp. And if the afore said Wilson Can manage the Children without abusing them, he has Privilige to come and get them at any time and is welcome to all of them. Paul M. Dishong doth agree that Mary Ann, his Wife, can sell the Cow to Enny one she pleases, only not to make sale to Enny of the Hesses, in Presence of William Forhner.

Paul M. Dishong,
Mary Ann Dishong,
James Wilson, which is the Churn Pedler mentioned in the afore said Article of Agreement; and is now proprietor of Mary Ann Dishong.

Special Notices.

Wilson & Brown, so extensively known,
As every observer must candidly own;
No tradesman whatever, in country or town,
Can boast of possessing a wider renown.
The reason of this is undoubtedly clear,
Yet a few observations are requisite here.
'Tis proved beyond doubt they have the best tea—
As good as consumers could wish it to be.
Their coffees and sugars are equally good,
A fact that is thoroughly well understood.
Their prices indeed are surpassingly low,
As numbers of customers already know.
And this is the reason, sufficiently shown,
Why Wilson & Brown are so extensively known.
